

The art center of the world has shifted from Paris to New York. Artists from every country are finding inspiration in the tempo of our free society.

The art of today demands an educated eye. 'Seeing' is so common that it is frequently confused with informed looking. If you bring something of yourself to this art, if you are willing to grow with it, exchange old values and concepts for new ones, the rewards will be great. Your life will become enriched with an understanding and appreciation of our own times. Everything around you will take on another dimension.

It is my sincere wish that you will visit as often as you can to see the new work of noted artists from all over the country that will be shown here.
